How to Talk to Youth About Human Trafficking

Those working with, supporting, or related to youth, are in the valuable position to reach out and educate them about avoiding exploitation and human trafficking. A professional and parent's role is important because they can interact with youth and secure information about to learn about their lives and build trust. Therefore, they may recognize when something is wrong in a young person's life. Attend this session to learn more about how to have the critical discussions with youth to keep them from becoming vulnerable to trafficking.
